Mom just asked where I got my suit.

O, do not gloat. Or I will hit you over the head with this very large report.

Thank you

Can I celebrate?

Or ask you when you want to go shopping again?

You're cute when you're naive.

Oh, that's right. I meant to say. Nice... lapels.

(Also, your shoulders are starting to really show the climbing.)

You were distracted by angsting about your love life on my LJ. Again. g

You're allowed to say the thing about the shoulders, though. Also, I can has lats, apparently.

You can has awesome lats. And ripped calves, too. And I would not say this to most women, but I know you will take it as a complement: killer biceps and thighs.

My love life is so much more angstworthy than yours. Yours is boring. I am required by law to provide you with the requisite amount of LJ relationship drama, lest you have a shortfall.

My love life is NOT BORING! Even if we were old married people, it would not be boring. And we are not old. (Not even one-year anniversary yet, quite.) And not married.

Thank you about the biceps and thighs, though. Hee. I shall let you bring the drama, just for that.

Compliment, even. Thank you, fingers & brain.

(And it's only a matter of time, he said direly. And then you won't be allowed to have single friends anymore.)

Nah, even old married couples are allowed one or two Token Single Friends, as long as said married couple is trying to play matchmaker for them.

At least, that seems to be the theory that my old married friends go on.

The shoulders are why you have to have the waistline darts.

'cause without waistline darts one looks like one is dressing up in Mom's too-big interview suit (no matter what age one is.) Which is not professional.
